In furtherance of its purpose to support the New York Transit Museum in fulfilling its mission to promote the history, advances, impact, and future of mass transportation in the New York metropolitan area, Friends of the New York Transit Museum is seeking the services of a firm to provide strategic and business planning services to migrate the Museum toward financial self-sufficiency. B. About the Friends of the New York Transit Museum

Friends of the New York Transit Museum (“FNYTM”) is a 501(c)(3) not-for-profit organization chartered to support and effectuate the work of the New York Transit Museum. FNYTM is governed by a Board of Trustees, which includes transportation, engineering, business development and academic professionals.

C. About the New York Transit Museum

The New York Transit Museum (Museum or NYTM) is one of only a few museums in the world dedicated to telling the story of urban public transportation. The Museum collects, exhibits, interprets, and preserves the history, sociology, and technology of public transportation systems in the New York metropolitan region, and conducts research and educational programs that make its extensive collections accessible and meaningful to a broad audience. It also functions as a public education and communications “arm” of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA), a fare media outlet, and is the official repository of all documents, drawings, maps and ephemera for the MTA and its subsidiary and predecessor agencies. As such, it has a continually-expanding collection that currently totals more than 800,000 artifacts, documents, drawings, photographs, moving images, etc. The oldest elements of the collection date to the early 1800’s.

The Museum occupies a de-commissioned, bi-level, 1930’s era subway station located at 99 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, NY 11201 (at the corner of Boerum Place and Schermerhorn Street). Founded in 1976, the Museum also includes a Gallery Annex and Retail Store in Grand Central Terminal, an archive facility, and an online presence. In 2016, the Museum had 181,000 visitors. An additional 435,000 people visited the Gallery Annex. Total visitation increase 37% from 2011. The diverse audience includes school and camp groups, individuals with special needs, high school and college students, teachers, adults, and seniors. A wide range of programming (including STEM-related programs and workshops, off-site tours, etc.) is developed and presented to appeal to the different populations. In 2016, the Museum received a National Arts and Humanities Youth Program Award for its Subway Sleuths program, marking it as a leader in the field [of what?]. Special off-site programming is also being developed, to increase the Museum’s reach into local communities and schools.

Education is central to the Museum’s mission. The scope of its exhibits cover all aspects of the history/development, operation, engineering, science, art, sociology and future of New York mass transit. Themes include the impact of mass transit on urban development and community life, the technology of mass transit and advances in the system, the history and experience of mass transportation, etc.

The Museum, its Grand Central location, and its archive are all properties of MTA. Currently, MTA and its subsidiaries underwrite approximately seventy-five percent (75%) to eighty percent (80%) of the Museum’s annual operating expenses.
